REMARKABLE SPIRIT OF CHINA BACKS HER RECUPERATION

Man-Power, Natural Resources, Reorganized Armies Explain New Strength

SECRET REVEALED

Recuperative Powers Evidence of Spirited Determination to Resist

(Editor's Note: The secrets of China's amazing resistance to Japanese aggression, explaining the ability of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to hold out for two years and a half against a vastly superior military machine, are disclosed in detail today by James R. Young, Far Eastern manager of International News Service. The following article, fifth in a series of six, was cabled from Hong Kong toward the end of a 9,000-mile trip through China and received in New York prior to his recent arrest in Tokyo on undisclosed charges.)

By James R. Young
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Man-power, Natural resources, Reorganized armies, Passive resistance. These four elements explain China's new strength and form the key to her amazing ability to withstand the military might of Japan.

China's remarkable recuperative powers, not in any one locality but throughout the enormous unconquered regions, are evidence of this nation's spirited determination to resist and defeat the Japanese empire.

Militarily, large Chinese counter-offensives this winter and spring are not anticipated by foreign observers in Hong Kong.

These are regarded as not possible and not feasible.

The Chinese have found that organized local attacks upon Japanese positions constitute a more successful strategy.

The surprising victory at Changsha proved to the Chinese five points.

Japanese spirit and morale are lower than one year ago.

Japanese equipment is not up to earlier standards.

Chinese are better positioned to fight Japanese in regions away from railways and lines of communications.

China's fighting spirit is better.

The Chinese soldier need not be taught the reasons for his defense or offense—he has all the answers in his heart.

The naval landing party south of in Southeast China were reported by Pakhoi and the approach to Nanning.

Japanese sources as a strategic military victory entirely severing the supply of Chinese arms that come by sea.

Actually, the Pakhoi route was closed a year ago by the Chinese.

Fresh operations by Japan so far from home brings the enemy into the reputed stronghold of Kwangsi Province.

Any Japanese attempt to penetrate this area will duplicate, it is believed, another loss of Changsha proportions—30,000 men. For Kwangsi is the home of General Fui Chung-Hai, one of China's greatest military leaders.

The Kwangsi men are rated China's best fighters.

China's optimism is based on her ability to carry on this type of defensive operations for years. Her continued mobilization of troops, although they are not nearly so well equipped as the Japanese, can bring her present manpower to a figure over 3,000,000 with another 1,800,000 in reserve.

Watch Out for These Teeth

(By "The Stroller")

A Bristol man is in a bad way these days and is experiencing all kinds of difficulty because someone has stolen his teeth, five of which were gold.

A man boarding in a Bristol home went to his employment the other day without his false teeth, which he left, it is stated, in a drawer in his room. The trouble had been giving him some trouble and he says that he left them at home because his mouth was sore.

During the day the man's room was visited by a workman and when the room's occupant returned at night and went to get his teeth, he reported them missing.

The workman was summoned by the police, but denied having taken the teeth, which have not as yet been located.

So if readers of this column should by any chance see a set of teeth which look unacquainted with the mouth in which they are reposing, please call the police.

Crowd Cries for Mosley

Manchester, England, Jan. 27.—Shouts of "We want Mosley" by an organized crowd of hecklers interrupted the speech by First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, today.

Sir Oswald Mosley is leader of the British Fascist party, a brother-in-law of Honorable Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, blonde admirer of Adolf Hitler, who recently returned to England from Germany, suffering from a mysteriously-inflicted bullet wound.

Churchill was in the middle of his address, in which he cautioned the people of England and France to be "ready for anything" once the war really develops, when the shout for Mosley came from the middle of the audience.

ARMY ENGINEERS INSPECT DELAWARE

Look Over the Ice Situation at Points Between Bristol and Trenton

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER

The mercury here took another downward dive last night and this morning the temperature, according to an unofficial reading, stood at six above zero.

The Delaware river tightened and this morning ice covered the stream from shore to shore.

United States Army engineers have been surveying the ice conditions in the Delaware above Bristol. They visited the Trenton area and took a number of pictures of the frozen river and made inquiries concerning the situation in the vicinity of Trenton at the Marine Terminal. Other observations were also made at points below Trenton and above Bristol.

Although the Delaware at Trenton is filled with ice 15 to 20 inches thick, the condition is not viewed as alarming as long as normal or subnormal temperatures exist. The danger will come if the thermometer takes a sudden upward leap and remains there for several days.

A. E. White, had of the Trenton weather bureau, declared there is no immediate danger because the river is frozen solid and the outlook indicates cold weather is going to remain for some time to come. He said it would take several days of unseasonal temperatures to cause the ice to break up. In the latter event, huge blocks would come swirling down the river and literally crush everything in their path.

Washington, Jan. 24. BURNS PROVE FATAL TO FRED POPE EARLY TODAY

Dies in Wagner Hospital This Morning at 6:30; Life-Long Resident Here

SHOTS SUMMONED HELP

Burns suffered yesterday morning proved fatal to Fred Pope, Wood street, at the Wagner private hospital, this morning. Death occurred at 6:30. Mr. Pope having suffered severe burns of the thighs, entire back, hands and lower limbs.

The deceased, an electrician by trade, was approximately 65 years of age. His only survivors are three cousins, one of whom, John Wright, the pharmacist, is a resident of Bristol. Born in Bristol, he had always resided in the borough. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Pope.

An unusual incident occurred in connection with Pope's fatal burns yesterday morning, he firing three shots from a revolver in an attempt to attract attention to his plight and secure help.

The first person to reach his side was "Eddie" Moffo, who was endeavoring to help Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Esposito determine what had shattered glass in a window in the shed of the Esposito home. It was then found that a window in the Pope property, which adjoins the rear of Esposito's, was also shattered. Peering in to the window of Pope's place, after Esposito summoned police, Moffo saw that Pope was in need of aid, and entered by way of a window. In answer to a query as to his difficulty, Pope told Moffo that his stove "back-fired," the blankets in which he (Pope) was wrapped, catching fire. Unable to get out for help, Pope fired the weapon to attract help, having presence of mind to aim high out of the window, so as not to strike anyone. The three bullets crashed the window at the rear of the Esposito shed, all three striking the top of the door jamb leading to the kitchen. Mrs. Esposito, ironing in the kitchen, states she did not hear the shots, but became terrified when glass continued to crash. It was when Continued on Page Two

The demonstrator, representing a school of cookery, gave a number of tried and tested recipes, with their accompaniments, and prepared before the group an oven meal. Later, in discussing budgeting, she also gave suggestions for a buffet luncheon menu.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. E. Linton Martin, who announced that the session on February 9th will be in charge of Mrs. Warren P. Snyder. In telling of plans for that event, Mrs. Snyder announced Edward Snow, of Lower Merion Township public schools, the richest school district in the United States, as the speaker. LEWIS BREAKS THE NEWS

Finances may become a problem if his best friends cannot dissuade President Roosevelt from embarking upon a third term campaign. This would be the sort of venture that requires heavy financing, and it is no longer believed likely that John L. Lewis would chip in with anything like the $500,000 he tossed into the 1936 hat. In fact, it is not believed likely that John would contribute anything.

Mr. Lewis touched upon the matter in a speech at the convention of his mine workers' union in this manner: "If the Democratic convention can be coerced or dragooned into renominating him, President Roosevelt will go down to ignominious defeat."

There were earlier indications that the strange assortment of bed-fellows comprising the New Deal was breaking up, but the Lewis statement brought a sickening feeling in the stomach to many Washington payrollers, who had been trying to make themselves believe that everything would be in 1940 as it was in 1936, and in 1944 as it was in 1940, and so on until the government became ready to retire them on pension.

From every viewpoint, the third term is skidding badly. Joe Guffey, the Pennsylvania front for the New Deal, who was to declare for a third term—beating even Harold Jekes to the gun—is not doing so well in his own state. Joe, who never voted against Roosevelt in six years in the Senate, must run for re-election this year, and Democratic county leaders throughout the state have been declaring publicly against another nomination for Joe. They never use the word "term" because they know the chances of any Democrat going to the Senate from Pennsylvania this year are zero, and they are taking it out on Joe by opposing him for another try.

Lewis is perhaps as cunning as Roosevelt himself when it comes to politics despite the fact that his vote-control is about 98 per cent less formidable than he tries to make it appear, and his pricking of the third term bubble was based on realism concerning the prospects come November, rather than on a dislike for Roosevelt. Lewis would like nothing better than to have Mr. Roosevelt returned to the White House. He has prospered exceedingly under the New Deal. He senses the futility of hoping for another four years such as the last four, however, so he turns on his pal and in unmistakable language tells him he is through, something none of the perfumed entourage convoluting around the head of the New Deal would think of intimating.

It was a shock to the leader of the "liberals." Too, and no mistake, which may supply a clue as to his third term intentions. If he didn't intend to run, why would he become riled by what anybody said about his chances at the election? It was no light matter that one of the numerous White House secretaries saw fit to issue a statement about it almost before Lewis' words were out of his mouth, and that the statement was constructed around one word—"iffy"—a Roosevelt word if ever there was one.

After the burning of much midnight oil, Nazi chemists have hit upon a substitute for coffee that has only one fault—it tastes like a substitute for coffee.

The Great Game of Politics

FICTION OTHER INTERESTS

John L. Lewis. That's the real cause of the A. F. of L. discontent with the law. If it were owned, dominated and directed by Mr. Green in the interests of the A. F. of L. the discontent would be transferred to Mr. Lewis, who would have made the air sulphurous with his denunciations. What the A. F. of L. wants is a new board rather than a new law. What the industries of the country are suffering from is both the law and the board.

CHANGING one without changing the other may help the situation some, but it will not cure it. What is needed—and what it is hoped the Smith committee in its report will supply—is a review of the whole labor-industry situation which can be used as a basis upon which to repeal the hasty and half-baked legislation now on the books, substituting for it a sound law which will fully conserve the principle of collective bargaining and every other reasonable labor right, but at the same time not permit the unions to keep their heavy heel permanently on the neck of industry.

THAT such a law can be worked out is clear. Perhaps it is better not to attempt it at this session. Perhaps it is better this session to bring out the facts about the bias of the NLR officials, the loading up of the pay roll with relatives of the "inner circle" group and the general lopsided operation of the board, leaving the framing of a new law in the hands of competent men who will have time to devise a really sound statute. Perhaps it will be better to leave the situation so that the issue can be fought out and talked out in the campaign. But soon or late a new and more just law will have to take the place of the Wagner Act. The present act is unfair both to business and labor. Neither should be left at the mercy of a law the interpretation of which depends upon the frame of mind of the men who administer it. That is why the personnel of the board is not the answer, though it undoubtedly would help to have less prejudiced men thereon.

BUT, clearly, Mr. Roosevelt cannot find labor men whom both the CIO and the A. F. of L. will favor. If one faction is pleased, the other will be sore. If he names men with whom industry is satisfied, then both labor factions will resent it. Personnel is important, but the law is more so. That, rather than members of the board, should be the reliance of both labor and industry and the public.

The Chinese people are behind their army. This winter China is not facing the Valley Forge of one year ago. Her men are better clothed, although hundreds of young peasant recruits still wear sandals minus socks. But padded cotton clothes and woolen blankets are keeping their bodies warmer this year than last.

Army transportation units are better organized. Hospitalization is improving but far behind what is required to handle the wounded.

Men who have weathered the Japanese attacks are better prepared to continue the resistance alongside fresh government troops.

The Japanese are suffering in this thirtieth month of their campaign from the almost impossible task of crushing mobile guerrilla units. Japan lacks the necessary reserves, equipment and adaptability to overcome this impeneable and unforeseen obstacle.

Japan's military machine has thrust itself inland at many points. The machine has swept fan-wise over China. Weak points have withdrawn. Strong groups are menaced in holding their occupied regions. Japanese military leaders in China no longer have a satisfactory explanation why the situation is prolonged; why their troops do not know or have forgotten the "holy war" angle.

The Japanese army is hampered by cholera and malaria. Two creosote pills after each meal is the rule. China's manpower is barely touched, although her casualties have been enormous, probably three or four times those of the Japanese.

The Chinese assert, but this cannot be substantiated, that 13,000,000 able-bodied men are available for reserve training. If China's industrial reorganization can provide more rifles and gunpowder, if the transportation problem is solved, China can fill the gaps in her widespread army.

Every Chinese, from the leader in Chungking to the lowliest of rickshaw pullers, believe China will win. The people and the army seem enthusiastic. The country seems to have recovered from the initial shock and fearful losses of great cities like Nanjing.

The Chinese are concentrating attacks on isolated Japanese garrisons. They specialize in sabotage and skillful wrecking in the enemy's communications. No startling achievements have been reported, but the constant blowing up of freight trains and attacks on Japanese troop trains is a menace the Japanese cannot escape.

The Chinese remove rails, using the spoils to make hand grenades and rifles. The Communist army in north-west China is noted for its home factories and industries that produce small arms war equipment.

Smuggling explosives and dynamite across and behind Japanese lines to destroy food depots, gasoline supplies, mechanized units, aviation camps and railway stations is a favorite method of attack.

Attacking Japanese controlled mines, factories and public utilities is part of the Chinese campaign.

Japan is suffering bitterly this winter in China's hilly regions. The much publicized mopping-up campaigns are causing the loss of many Japanese troops.

In aviation the Japanese remain masters. They will hold the upper hand as long as America supplies the oil and gasoline. The Chinese, according to latest authentic reports, have 10 to 12 air training schools. The quality of the men turned out and the value of the equipment are unknown to outsiders.

The Soviets are helping technically and with equipment. At one point about 360 Soviets are employed as engineers or instructors. The Reds are believed located in four different and widely separated camps. The result of their work in training or assisting the Chinese air force will not be known this winter or spring.

This Red aid has not included any appreciable Communist inroads. The help is similar to that given the Chinese when they had German, British and Italian advisers. Chinese planes are believed far insufficient to combat Japanese squadrons. Anti-aircraft equipment, some units costing half a millions dollars, is improved. Recent successes were scored in bringing down a number of heavy Japanese bombers, all 1939 models.

Perfect transport is unachieved. Railroads are too costly. Metals are needed for guns and hand grenades. Three American road building experts from Chicago headed by M. E. Sheahan, are laying plans to connect up dozens of irregular provincial roads, into smooth-transport highways, primarily to aid military developments, and secondarily to develop them into post-war commercial lanes.

Announce Committees For Middletown Grange

and Mrs. Jesse Webster, Edwin E. Ridge and May E. Newbold.

Prior to the business session the grange went through the formality of draping the charter in memory of Louis Schlatter, one of the members, who died recently.

During the evening one application for membership was received and two received at a meeting several weeks ago were acted upon favorably.

The literary hour was in charge of the lecturer, Mrs. Mabel Bjarnason, who announced that throughout the year enthusiasm will be the keynote of the programs. She presented Pomona Deputy Joseph Winder, of the Delaware Valley Grange, who spoke on grange procedure and parliamentary law. Helen Heston gave an interesting reading, and Blaine Patterson spoke of the blue bird, stressing especially the fact that it lives largely on the seeds of weeds.

These features were followed by a discussion of the reciprocal trade agreement, in which most of the subject matter was taken from comments made over the radio by Dr. Grady and National Grange Master Louis J. Taber. Arguments in favor of the agreement were presented by Barney Bjarnason, and National Master Taber's arguments against the agreement were presented by Russell Newbold. Their presentation of the subject was followed by a general discussion.

Briefly Mrs. Joseph Winder brought greetings from the Delaware Valley

Grange, of which she is a member, and announcement was made that tonight Middletown Grange will start the travelling gavel on its 1940 tour of the county by taking it to the Plumsteadville Grange, where the local organization will also present the program. The gavel, it is expected, will be in possession of every grange in the county before it returns to Middletown later in the year.

The next meeting of the local grange will be held in the memorial house, here, Wednesday evening, February 7th, at which time one of the features will be a discussion of the comparative merits of lard and lard substitutes.

Burns Prove Fatal To Fred Pope Early Today

Mr. Esposito, during the investigation, saw that glass in Pope's living quarters was also broken, that he suspected that something was wrong, and summoned officers.

Pope was immediately rushed to the Wagner hospital, where death occurred early this morning. Pope conducted a small electrical repair shop on Wood street, near Penn. During his earlier years, he was very active in boating, and spent much time in his boat on the Delaware River. He had for many years been a member of the Anchor Yacht Club. At one time he served as janitor for St. Paul's Episcopal Church, which was located at Jefferson avenue and Wood street.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Nuptial Mass Unites Phila.
Man and Croydon Resident

With a nuptial mass solemnized in St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Croydon, this morning at nine o'clock, Miss Marcella Marie Rauback, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rauback, Croydon Manor, became the bride of Walter Joseph Lithgow, son of Mrs. Mary Lithgow, Philadelphia. The officiating priest was the Rev. Father Joseph Diamond; and presiding at the organ console was Miss Frances Tamburella, Bristol, who played the wedding march and accompanied the vocalist, Miss Mary Sodano, who sang "Mother at Your Feet is Kneeling."

Miss Anna Rauback was her sister's bridesmaid; and Joseph Rauback, a brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Miss Lorraine Rauback, a niece of the bride, acted as flower girl.

The bride was attired in a gown of white satin with tight bodice, with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, full skirt with train. A lace trimmed tulle veil reached to the end of the train and she wore a shoulder veil, both being held in place with a crown of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and valley lilies. White satin slippers were worn.

The bridesmaid wore dusty rose satin with trim of dubonnet velvet ribbon. The gown was fashioned on Princess lines. A face veil was attached to a tarras of lilies-of-the-valley, and she carried white gladioli and baby breath. Slippers were of silver. The tiny flower girl wore a Colonial costume of periwinkle blue satin, with trim of Royal blue ribbon, in hoop skirt style. A wreath of forget-me-nots was worn, and she carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow tea rose buds.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to members of the wedding party, immediately after the ceremony; dinner was served at Sottung's, to the wedding party and members of the families of the contracting parties at noon; and a reception at the Rauback home this evening will be attended by over 100 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Lithgow will leave for a motor trip to Tampa, Fla. They will reside in an apartment on Belmont avenue.

What a treat is "What a Life," screen version of the Broadway stage smash which flashed across the Bristol screen last night. Jackie Cooper, who emerges as a superb comedian; Betty Field, fresh from her triumph in the stage play and fresher than any youngster you've ever clapped eyes on, and John Howard weigh in heavily with sparkling acting chores. Players in "Westbound Stage," now showing at the Bristol Theatre, narrowly escaped death when the stage team bolted, being halted after a long run by Tex Ritter who leaped from his own "White Flash" onto the back of the lead horse.

No less than 20 motion picture sets were required for "Rulers of the Sea," epic story of the triumph of steam over sail, presented on Sunday at the Bristol Theatre.

BRISTOL HIGH FIVE NOSES OUT MORRISVILLE; SCORE 14 TO 11

CLEM PETERPAUL, SUBSTITUTE GUARD, IS HERO OF GAME

Defensive Play is Featured All During The Contest

SOME BRILLIANT SPOTS

Bristol Played Passing Attack In Last Two Minutes of Game

Clem Peterpaul, a substitute guard for Bristol High, became the hero as the Cardinals nosed out an aggressive and spirited Morrisville High quintet here last night, 14-11.

As might be surmised by the score, defensive play reigned for another contest between the clubs which kept pace with other traditional facts of this court series. Both clubs had their moments of brilliancy and each had its moments of raggedy playing in a variety ball game.

But back to Peterpaul and his winning shot. It came midway in the final session at a time when Bristol trailed by a single point, 11-10. He took a pass in the right corner, dribbled once, pivoted and pushed up a one hand shot that found its way into the twine to push Bristol ahead, 12-11. Then after Joe Quigley sunk a free throw a bit later, Peterpaul sewed up the tilt for the home team when he too stepped to the foul line and sank a gift shot with but 2 minutes to play.

And through the last wild minutes and three quarters, Bristol exhibited a fine passing attack as they proceeded to "freeze" the leather. Bristol gained possession on some smart thinking by captain Danny DiMido, who waived Peterpaul's second free shot after he made the first one, and took the ball out of bounds at mid-court.

The tilt, as usual, while ragged at times, had its moments of excitement although such moments were sparing. But little of the spine-tingling action that crammed last year's tussle found its way into this scrap.

Bristol lost no time in achieving a lead at the expense of the Bulldogs, who were shut out in the first period while Bristol racked up five points on a field goal by Joe Quigley and a foul by Quigley and two by DiMido.

From all appearances with the score 5-0 at the start of the second canto, it looked like a romp for the home towners. But the Bulldogs seemed to have gotten over the jitters after that period, and steadied their nerves in the second session.

And when they did that, they started to click. In short order, the Bulldogs were up to Bristol on field goals by Vince DeBronze and Chick Hulse plus a foul sunk by DeBronze. They then forged ahead when DeBronze, who sparked the attack, dropped in another double decker. Joe Quigley's single counter from the 15-foot mark, however, cut the Bulldogs' lead to 7-6 at halftime.

DeBronze continued the attack in the third chapter by dribbling in to score below deck and thereby give his team its best margin, 9-6. But Chick DiAmelio counted on a long pass from Quigley and the latter sank a set-up shot under the twine to put Bristol ahead at the end of the third period, 10-9.

To start the last period, little Dave Seitzer, who captained the Bulldogs, sank the longest double decker of the contest to again give Morrisville a point lead, 11-10, and set the stage for Peterpaul's dramatic shot that ultimately gave Bristol the triumph.

As a result of the decision, the Cards increased their lead over Morrisville from a half game to a game and a half, in the Lower Bucks County circuit.

FRANKLIN A. C. TO PLAY THIRD WARD

A change has been announced in the schedule of the Bristol Suburban Basketball League. On Monday night, the Franklin A. C. will play the Third Ward team. The originally scheduled game for Monday night between Cornwells and Croydon will be played Thursday night.

Bristol Basketball League games scheduled for Monday night are as follows:

Falls and Manhattan; Rohm and Haas and Grundy's.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to witness the contests, all of which have an important bearing on the league standings.

Visitors Had Little Trouble In Winning The Contest

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 27.—The Fallington Falcons slipped past the Bensalem Owls and back into third place in the Lower Bucks County league standings as they trimmed the Blue and Gray warriors here last night, 27-14.

Coach Jim Doheny's boys had little difficulty with the Owls, who had previously been troublesome to all league opponents. The Falcons gained the upper hand right from the outset when Art Driscoll hit the nets on two straight long shots to give his club a 4-0 lead. After Frank Katroba sunk a foul goal, the invaders hiked their lead to 10-1 by the close of the period on double deckers by Bill Batten and another by Driscoll plus free tosses sunk by Stan Felkner and George Lovett.

Fallington's Junior Varsity five easily walloped Bensalem's Jayvees in the preliminary tilt, 24-10. They led at one time, 20-3.

SOUTHAMPTON QUINTET TURNS BACK BUCKINGHAM, 27-13

SOUTHAMPTON, Jan. 27.—The Southampton Greyhounds moved out of a last place tie with the Buckingham Buccaneers to step into fifth place in the Lower Bucks County court circuit when they whipped the invading Bucs here last night by a 27-13 count. It was once more, Charlie Heaton, ace of the Greyhound staff, who personally presented the Greyhounds with their first league triumph. He hit the cords for 12 points on a half dozen field goals.

In the preliminary tilt of the evening, Southampton's sextet walloped the Buckingham Doegirls to win easily.

BRISTOL SEXTET RALLIES TO DEFEAT STARLINGS

A last period rally by Bristol High's sextet enabled them to score a well earned 33-24 triumph over the Morrisville Starlings in a fast and well played girls' game in the preliminary tilt to the main attraction of the evening on the high school boards last night.

While the tilt itself was secondary to the varsity fray, yet it contained much more action, was a faster game, and was, even more exciting than the boys' contest.

For three periods, the clubs battled in see-saw fashion with the lead changing hands on no less than ten occasions and was tied twice. During those three chapters, the occasion was rare when either team scored two times before the opposition retaliated with a point or two depending on the type of goal scored.

The line-ups:
Bristol (33)	Fd.G.	F.G.	FT.	Tot.
